DYSPEPSIA

Is that misery experienced when suddenly made aware that you possess a diabolical arrangement called stomach. No two dyspeptics have the same predominant symptoms, but whatever form dyspepsia takes

The underlying cause is in the LIVER, and one thing is certain no one will remain a dyspeptic who will

Start the Liver working and all bodily ailments will disappear.

"For more than three years I suffered with dyspepsia in its worst form. I tried several doctors, but they afforded no relief. At last I tried Simmons' Liver Regulator, which cured me in a short time. It is a good medicine. I would not be without it."—JAMES A. ROANE, Philad'a, Pa.

THAT CHILDLESS HOUSEHOLD.

"It is high on thirty year or more since Hannah left her mother. An we agreed that she and I could house with one another.

An all these years of married bliss That I have shared with Hannah Have gone to prove the difference 'Twixt man and woman's manner.

Now Hannah has her garden beds And tends her plants and posies, While I weed out my turnip plot An hoe my early rows.

Then Hannah has her cat and dog, Her pet and pet canary, While I think more of useful beasts To keep the farm an dairy.

We're both contented with our lot, I let her have her parrots, She never minds that I prefer The turnip, beats an carrots.

For in this life the pretty things Are put beside the common, And that's the reason why a man Was made to love a woman.

—San Antonio Express.

When Her Mother Was a Girl.

The betrothal of Princess Mary of Teck recalls the days when the Duchess of Teck was a girl. I remember well how she was the heart and soul of all the gayeties at the Castle of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, even at the age when she had hardly entered into her teens. She was a lovely girl, but a romp and tomboy of the first order, from whose practical, though innocent, jokes nobody at the castle was safe. If all the candles in a room went suddenly out, or if ghostly forms appeared to visitors on their way to their bedrooms, Princess Mary was sure to be at the bottom of the plot.

One winter evening stands out especially in my memory. A party of children were frolicking about the castle, Princess Mary the brightest and gayest among them. They were playing about the corridors, and I have a very vivid recollection of seeing the princess rush along in wild haste, pursued one of her visitors. Suddenly her hair, which was held up at the back of her head by an arrow shaped ornament, came down and enveloped her as in a shower of gold. I never saw such lovely hair as that of the Duchess of Teck when she was a girl. As she flew along, with twisting eyes and burning cheeks, she twisted the mass of hair into a golden coil, dashed the arrow through it and vanished into a gallery.

She was a favorite with everybody, a girl of remarkably sunny temper, and even her tutors and governesses were always on her side, though they confessed that she was "a fair handful."—Cor. Pall Mall Gazette.

A Daring Rider.

Miss Ethel Chase Sprague, the grand daughter of Chief Justice Chase, is a remarkable horsewoman, both graceful and fearless.

She rode at a memorable paper chase by the Cross Country club of New York not long since. The roads were in a bad condition and several of the best riders fell out. Near the end of the chase the way seemed impassable from the ditches and the gullies and the swollen creeks. Rock creek had risen high from the long rains. The woods were heavy and many branches broken. Miss Sprague on Star was in the lead. "Take care, Miss Ethel! Do take care, Miss Sprague!" shouted the nearest to her. "Look out for that fallen tree!"

On plunged Star and his fearless mistress. Her head struck a branch, but with a steady rein she guided Star through the thicket in safety, her head laid on his neck and her hat and veil caught in the tree. The last ditch was jumped, and bareheaded and scratched the slim girlish figure dashed in at the finish. A dozen men sprang to escort the victor to the breakfast room, where, dashed and merry, she received the prize, a handsome scarf-pin set in rubies and pearls.—New York Letter.

Reform Coming Surely.

Tell it not in Gath, but mildly this season has discarded the cumbersome petticoats, and even the separate dress lining, the latter being attached to the skirt itself, like the lining of a jacket. This is better than any divided garment ever invented. The long, clinging skirt is perfectly comfortable, and the limbs are as untrammelled as they ought to be, consistent with femininity. A short skirt, coming just below the knee, gives warmth and protection. It would seem that dress reform is really beginning in the right direction by reducing the quantity of the manifold undergarments that ladies used to wear and substituting well fitting, warmer clothing in their places. One by one surplus garments are dispensed with, until we have succeeded in obtaining really comfortable apparel.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Household Inventions.

Eighteen different kinds of folding beds were patented during the past year, a patent trap to catch vermin was evolved; six schemes were devised to hold bedclothes on kickers; seven bed lounges were produced; seven invalid chairs and nineteen different ways of rolling up a shade were duly patented, and innumerable devices for hanging curtains, sweeping carpets, stretching carpets, cleaning carpets have been dumped into the patent office like coal through a cellar shoot.—Philadelphia Upholsterer.

Lady Aberdeen's Part in the World's Fair. Lady Aberdeen, who is creating no end of excitement in the social circles of New York, wears her hair flattened like the coiffure of the ancient Egyptians. She has a genial Irish face, with a strawberry and cream complexion. She is to superintend the exhibition of Irish manufactures at the World's fair. The Earl of Aberdeen, her husband, is what women call a grand man. He is stately, well put up and chivalrous in manner.—Philadelphia Press.

The zarina of Russia has received the Maria cross of honor from her imperial husband. She has for twenty-five years been associated with the charitable institutions founded by the czar's mother.

SHE SHOULD BE HONORED.

The Wife of America's Discoverer Is Entitled to Considerable Credit.

"With all the preparations now going on for the big event of 1893, everybody, the women in particular, seem to be forgetting something, and thereby the loyalty of woman to woman and the chivalry of man to woman promises to suffer exceedingly."

The speaker was a charming old school gentleman who is stopping at the Auditorium.

"We have been surfeited," he continued, "with talk regarding Christopher Columbus and schemes to have his picture, an illustrated history of him, relics of his birthplace and of his wanderings brought here and put on exhibition. This homage paying to Christopher is proceeding on all hands with excess, and it is quite right and proper, but why don't we hear something about Mrs. Columbus? Probably but few women nowadays ever knew there was such a woman as Mrs. Christopher Columbus! It occurs to me as particularly singular that in this day, especially when women are being accorded so much of prominence—and largely by reason of their own enterprise, too—that upon this occasion the memory of Mrs. Christopher Columbus is permitted to be so entirely 'out of it' instead of 'in it.'"

"I have been reading upon the subject lately, and find that Mrs. Columbus was probably more deserving of a share of the credit of Mr. Columbus' success than have been most of the unknown wives of well known men."

"Columbus was married in 1470, or thereabout, to a Miss Palestrello, of Lisbon, whose father had distinguished himself as a navigator. A niece of Miss Palestrello's marriage dowry was a great collection of valuable charts, journals and important memoranda. From childhood she had displayed wonderful enthusiasm on the subject, partaking to a marked degree of the speculative and adventurous ideas and schemes in the line of geographical discovery for which Lisbon was then headquarters. She possessed a fine education and was widely known as a brainy, brilliant woman, who was constantly urging her husband on in the path which finally brought him to the wonderful goal with which we are so familiar. While a girl Miss Palestrello made a number of hazardous voyages with her father in unfamiliar waters, and later made many geographical drawings, several of which were used with great profit by Columbus when he had won her for wife and set out upon his more important wanderings on the great deep.

"There probably is no picture of this brave, talented woman extant, but certainly it would seem a gracious and most fitting thing that her memory receive some tribute upon the forthcoming occasion."—Chicago Tribune.

How a Young Woman Lives in a Hotel.

It is getting to be much the fashion for unmarried women now to have homes, rather than to live in hotels or boarding houses. Apartments of all kinds and at all prices are to be found, from the two rooms and bath to the homekeeping suite, but it develops the home feeling to have one's own suite one's own furniture and arrangements. Nearly all the new apartment hotels provide small suites for one or two persons, where steam heat and hot water go with the rooms. The tenant pays for his own gas and provides for himself (or herself) furniture, service and food. The expense, of course, varies with the locality. For instance, in one of these hotels located on Copley square, the finest part of the city, a lady has a suite of two rooms and bath, with private hall and two very large closets for trunks, etc., of which the rent is $500 a year.

Having her own books, pictures, bric-a-brac, bookcases, mirror and writing desk, she required only furniture for the bedroom and a rug, sofa and chairs for the little salon. Window draperies and portieres were got up out of the pretty and inexpensive "serim"—at twenty-five cents a yard—and the entire cost of furnishing was within $100. The hotel had a dining room on the European plan, and she had also a gas stove, on which it was easy to make tea or coffee in the morning, and with cream, rolls easily fringed the dainty breakfast is very full and charming. Her rooms are tasteful and charming, and the entire cost of living does not exceed eighteen dollars a week, while such a suite in a hotel on the American plan would not be less than fifty dollars a week.—Boston Cor. New Orleans Times-Democrat

Woman's Department of the Exposition.

Uncommon interest has been attracted to the woman's department, the most notable feature of the great fair. It was placed under the charge of Mrs. Potter Palmer. She is a society leader in Chicago, where it is proudly boasted that she would grace any court. She is the possessor of great wealth, and was wholly unacquainted with public affairs before she undertook this charge, and yet she has taken hold of the woman's department as of something by the conduct of which she may crown her life, and in doing so has shown the most marked executive ability.

In choosing a plan for its building the woman's department has copied one of the most admirable designs made for the exposition. The architect who drew the design is Miss Sophia G. Hayden, of Boston. Mrs. Palmer has planned a treasury of objects illustrative of woman's work. The exhibit will embrace a model kitchen, a modern crèche, a kindergarten and a hospital, with trained nurses, a notable exhibition of books written by women, periodicals edited and published by women, and, most interesting of all, the mechanical inventions by women. Julian Ralph in Harpers.

The Ugly Girl Not Outchased.

A Terrible Spider.

A spider on a caustic web which flies between fabric and ports on the gulf has some very interesting specimens which he secured while on the coast of Yucatan. Among them is a large jar filled with enormous spiders, which he says are looked upon with greatest fear by the Indians of the central portion of that country, and which are undoubtedly the largest ever seen.

The body of the spider is fully five inches in diameter and the legs are short and thick, being especially adapted to running and climbing. They are about two inches long and are as big around as an ordinary lead pencil. The animal is of a grayish brown color, but is most peculiarly marked by deep red bands, which cross its body, extending clear around diagonally from shoulder to hip, crossing each other at the middle of the back and the center of the belly.

The fierceness of the insect and the marking on the back have induced the Indians to name it the "Devil's Soldier," and they say that it is undoubtedly the worst foe to man in that whole country, making it almost impossible for any one to go into the interior, for it abounds in such numbers that no place is free from it, and its bite is certain death.

Only one instance is known to Indians where a man has been bitten and did not die, and this man was wildly insane ever afterward. The spider makes its home among the rocks, and when anything approaches it rushes boldly out and makes an attack so fiercely that it is almost impossible to escape it. It runs with great rapidity and climbs sticks and trees as easily as if it were on the ground.—Atlanta Constitution.

Many Pretty Bed Coverings.

There are, and probably always will be, many who prefer the all white bed, and for these many pretty bed coverings are provided. Linen shams, with borders of elaborate drawn work, are used with plain white Marseilles spreads. Antique lace of firm, fine texture is always suitable and makes a dainty bed, used either over white or some delicate color. The figured China and India silks used during the last year or two are also still in favor for bed and bolster coverings, but a newer material for this purpose is the Hollywood sheeting, a fancy double width material of soft, cream-white cotton, whose rough surface is exceedingly effective when wrought with the simple, showy patterns employed for this work.

A very handsome one designed for a white and gold guestchamber has a conventional pattern scattered over it, worked in shades of yellow and brown. The pattern is first outlined with a long chain stitch, the leaves and shadings marked, then the intervening spaces filled with a simple filling stitch, which is very rapidly done and is yet exceedingly showy. The spread extends over the pillows, and a band of colored ribbed silk, is passed across the bed just below the pillows and tied in a handsome bow.—Chicago Herald.

Characteristics of Hungarian Women.

The Hungarian woman likes to cat well, takes naturally to swimming, dancing, gymnastics, and has not the least objection to being admired. Although not specially inclined to sentimental effusiveness, in one sense of the term, she may, in moments of love and passion, give a profoundly stirring expression to her emotions; she may clothe her sentiment in words of enrapturing naivete, drawn from the depths of the national temperament, if it does not find utterance in the all expressive "jai," whispered in the accents of ecstasy, accompanied by an ineffably blissful glance. This is true of the so called girls of the higher classes, for grace and beauty know no difference between high and low, and often bestowed upon a poor barefooted, short skirted peasant girl (with her face in a kerchief tied under the chin) the same enchanting form, the same magically attractive glance, as upon her more favored sister.—Wilhelm Singer in Harper's.

The Origin of a Famous Tree.

In the famous West Philadelphia Bartram Botanical gardens there flourishes an enormous Florida swamp cedar, the trunk of which is fully six feet in diameter. This tree was planted under very peculiar circumstances, well worthy of narration. One day, many years ago, the great Bartram was riding through the state of marshes and alligators, and the beast he bestrode was a very Rocinante. So, to accelerate his journey, he dismounted at a neighboring swamp and cut a switch, with which he belabored to good effect the lean and hungry steed. The switch did such good service upon this occasion that he preserved it, and upon his return to Philadelphia planted it in his garden, and the huge swamp cedar is the switch.—Philadelphia Record.

She Was Mistaken.

"Maria," said Mr. Jones, looking tenderly at his wife, "there is a mouse!" "Oh, mercy goodness, where? Oh, save me, Jephtha, save me—save your Maria!" and the frightened woman jumped on the sofa and screamed hysterically.

"Good heavens, Maria, what is the matter? I don't see anything! Where is it?"

"You said there was a mouse!" "I didn't say anything of the kind. I said, or tried to say, there was a mouse—lin delaine dress in Brown's window which was exactly like one you had when we were married. I wish you wouldn't interrupt me like that."—Detroit Free Press.

C. J. Bosko, the rotund commercial traveler, spent yesterday in Reno. He has been in Utah and returned by way of Pioche and White Pine. A new cure for the grip has been discovered in New York. A resident of that city who was seriously ill with the disease received a notice from the Tax Department charging him with being possessed of $5,000 worth of personal property. As that was ten times more than he was worth he became so worried that he was thrown into a violent perspiration, which broke up the fever and cured him.
About 8 o'clock last evening one of the railroad wires running west came in contact with an electric light wire, it is supposed at Essex, and threatened to start a blaze in the Verdi office. Had it not been for the fuses recently introduced in the W. U. office at Reno it might have caused considerable damage. These fuses are so arranged that a current of electricity in excess of a half ampere in strength will fuse them and leave the wire open.
The Reno Juvenile Band, under the able directorship of Prof. Hoskins, opened the exercises of the Prohibition lecturer last night. The boys organized the band about four months ago and is composed of boys from 12 to 16 years of age. All were totally ignorant as to the manipulation of their instruments, but their first appearance last night agreeably surprised all who heard them. The manner in which they acquitted themselves reflects great credit on their instructor.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

The Chilean War—Holman's Resolution Division in the Alliance Party—A Reno Vocalist.
WASHINGTON, D. C., January 25, 1892.
EDITOR NEVADA STATE JOURNAL:—The Chilean business has passed the talking stage, and President Harrison will, if rumor is correct, send his message and the correspondence to Congress to-day. The same were withheld to this late day on account of the representation made by the Chilean Minister. Congress is already in a decided warlike mood, and it depends upon the action of Chili whether a declaration of war will follow.
THE ALLIANCE REPRESENTATIVES
Solidly supported the first half of Representative Holman's double-barreled resolution, which was passed by the House, against Government subsidies, or aid in any shape to private industries, and divided on the other half expressing the judgment of the House to be against the appropriation of any money, except what is absolutely necessary to carry on the departments of the Government. Representatives Glover, Kern, McKim and Simpson voted for it and Representatives Davis, Halvorsen and Otis against it. At first glance one would suppose that the adoption of such a resolution meant that all schemes requiring appropriations were to be shut out during the session. But no such construction is placed upon it by Congressmen, and it is doubtful whether there are twenty of them who would allow it to stand in the way of their voting and working for anything beneficial to their friends or their constituents.
Talking reform and reforming are wide apart, and as shown by the almost solid vote of the House in favor of employing clerks for all of the committees, in spite of the statement of the minority of the committee on accounts that at least thirteen of these clerks were unnecessary, and that they performed no public duties, although they drew $2,186 each per annum. Here was an opportunity thrown away to have saved $28,418 a year, without in any way injuring the public interests.
ELECTIONS BY POPULAR VOTE.
Senator Palmer of Illinois, whose election to the Senate, if not by popular vote, was the direct result of a State campaign in which his candidacy was made the principal issue in the election of members to the Legislature, is an enthusiastic advocate of the election of Senators by the people. He proposes to introduce a bill and make a speech in favor thereof shortly, although he has little hope that this Congress will pass such a bill, but he firmly believes that the time is not far distant when public opinion will compel Congress to act.
CONSERVATION AMONG CLERKS.
Representative O'Neill has created consternation among the Government clerks, who now work but seven hours a day, out of which comes lunch time, by proposing to attach a provision to the Sundry Civil appropriation bill requiring all Government employees to work eight hours a day. He does not believe the Government should make any distinction in the time required of its employees.
APPLAUSE FOR A RENO VOCALIST.
During the past week the music loving people of this city have had a real treat in witnessing the "Bostonians" at Albough's Theatre in a new comic opera, Robin Hood. Among the principal members of the company is Miss Flora Finlayson of your town. She has the principal part. The night I heard her she looked most charming and was in capital voice, which is a remarkably clear and sonorous contralto. Judging from the tremendous amount of applause of which she was the recipient from the audience during each act, it was evident that her acting as well as her singing satisfied the most vivid ideas of the romantic. To say she did justice to the sprightly and d'charni g music of the opera would not begin to express the great admiration of the many expressions that I heard in the lobby of the theatre between acts.
With Miss Finlayson and Dick Jose before the footlight, Nevada is artistically represented in the theatrical world.
A MILL ON THE TRUCKEE.
Two Middle-weights Fight at Crystal Peak.
Yesterday numerous buggies and carriages, all laden with passengers, went up the river, and it seemed as if there was some unusual attraction at Langhoo's Springs, Verdi or some other place on the river. A JOURNAL reporter ascertained that a prize fight was to take place between Charles Campbell of Reno and Zach Taylor of Carson, both middle-weights. As the Sheriff was supposed to be on their trail they kept on to Crystal Peak, and west of the iron monument which marks the boundary between California and Nevada, they formed a ring by stretching a rope around three pine trees and driving a stake for the fourth. The fight was for $200 a side, but there was no gate money. A. Donnelly was chosen referee, and Thomas McCormack acted as second for Taylor and Dan O'Keefe stood as best man for Campbell. Crystal Peak is well up in the mountains, and a lively snow storm prevailed when time was called. Both men jumped in the ring, and without many preliminaries went to work. Six rounds were fought without a knock down. Six-ounce gloves were used, and the fight and money were awarded Campbell on a foul, Taylor having attempted to trip him twice, and was warned that if he repeated the attempt he would give the fight to Campbell.

Wm. S. Holman, Who Keeps His Eye on the Treasury.

Mr. Holman was elected to the Thirty-sixth Congress and he has served in every subsequent Congress excepting the Thirty-ninth, Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth. He is now Chairman of the Committee of Appropriations, and has succeeded in getting passed resolutions which commit the House of Representatives to like views with his own as to the use of public money, and give his committee an all-comprehensive oversight of expenditures. Judge Holman as he is commonly called, was born in Indiana, in 1822. He had been two years at college before he became a school teacher. In his leisure he prepared for the bar. After having held several local offices, in 1851 he sat as member of the Legislature of Indiana. From 1852 to 1856 he was a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. The "Poor Ricard" of the House of Representatives commands great influence in its deliberations. The long war he has made on wasteful expenditure has made his name synonymous with economy in state affairs.

Advice to Girls.
Don't conclude that a man's a gentleman, because he has the manners of one.
Don't think because a man is a graceful and interesting talker that he is everything else.
Don't fail to take a man at his word when he says he is poor.
Don't be familiar with men, and don't permit familiarities from them.
Don't think because a man likes you that he wants to marry you.
Don't think that a man is not in love with you because he has not proposed to you.
Don't be silly about the men.
Don't be rude to a man in order to show your independence.
Don't let a man impose upon you, simply because he is a man.
Don't believe everything a man tells you, either about himself or yourself.
An Indian Conflict.
Yesterday afternoon out on the freight depot platform two Indian bucks indulged in a fist encounter which would have delighted the heart of a John L. Sullivan. In the first round one of the noble red men landed his foot in the other's bosom, with such weight as to cause stars to doubtless appear in that poor Mr. Lo's vision. In the second round the unfortunate red man's ire had risen, and when he got up and lit into the other there was a wild flourish of legs, arms and paraphernalia, and the two began a close communion walk about the platform until they were separated by an officer.

The World Enriched.
The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system, gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.
In the Austrian province of Galicia, there are a number of robust women who desire to emulate the Amazons. They have petitioned the Emperor, Francis Joseph, for permission to enter military service. They claim that they are stronger and more courageous than effeminate men, and will make better soldiers. It would be a novelty in civilized warfare to have a corps of women well armed and well disciplined in the army, but in Dahomey, Africa, the King's body guard is composed exclusively of women.

Practise for the Jury.
"Paper, sir?" asked the newsboy.
"No, I never read," was the blunt answer.
"Hi, boys, come here," called out the gamins; "there's a man as is practicin' for the jury!"
